Nancy Wynne Makes Comment on Many Matters. The Woman's National Party to Hold Rummage Sale This Week

Philadelphia branch of the National Woman's party is holding a rummage sale this week at 1024 Chestnut street.

Participants were asked to look over their wardrobes and search through their cedar chests, and a splendid collection of articles is now on sale to help the cause. In consequence, virtually everything salable may be found there in the way of clothes, hats, shoes, gloves, jewelry, books, curtains, china, rugs, pictures, furniture and such.

The committee includes Miss Mary A. Burroughs, Mrs. Edwin C. Greer, Mrs. K. G. Hallinan, Miss Mary H. Ingham and Miss Caroline Kraybill, the executive secretary. Others who are active members of the National Woman's party include Miss Mary E. Womack, Miss Joan L. Brummo, Mrs. M. C. Kaylor, Miss Martha Davis, Miss Rebecca Kraybill, Miss Alice Brock, Miss Mary G. Cochran, Miss Harriet W. Dulles, Miss Florence L. Skayville, Mrs. L. M. B. Mitchell, Mrs. Pope Ventman, Miss Elizabeth D. Elder, Miss Cecelia P. Bass, Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, Miss Lavinia L. Duck, Miss Rita Riegel, Miss Marie Ernest Keener, Mrs. Harry Lowenbarg and Dr. Sarah H. Lockrey.

Did you notice Marion O'Brien in the parade last Saturday? She was one of the six original founders of the Emergency Aid at the outbreak of the war, you remember, when George Horwitz was also present interested in war work. How does it do for you? Just think of all that has happened since then in her life. George Horwitz died, she went South to do what she could with some land she owned there. The land burned, and she showed herself such an efficient business woman that the men of Moore Haven, Fla., came up and made her Mayor of that little town. Then last year she came up here visiting and the next thing we heard she had married "Cap" O'Brien. And since then she has been heard of off and on in war work, land work and various enterprises.

When the parade was planned she was arranged to come up and walk with the organizers of the Emergency Aid, and she arranged to do so and also go on a day in Boston for a few days to see her son O'Brien, who is at school there. I understand she is coming back next week to stay in Philadelphia for a few days. She looked awfully well in the parade. I thought, she was always a striking-looking woman, her light hair and dark eyes giving a most unusual appearance.

SAW Leta Sulzant on Sunday coming out of her home at Twenty-first and Walnut streets, and she certainly looked mighty well. She's just come back from Washington, where she visited the Peter Goulet Gerry. She had a perfectly beautiful officer with her. They were bound for church, I surmised, as it was about time for churching. Leta wore a large black hat turned up at the back, and the white gown was made of loops of Kinza like ribbon. She had a dark blue sash suit, and really looked charming.

THERE is to be quite a time out at the Merion Cricket Club on Friday night. Several women have got up a dance for the benefit of the French food fund, and there will be a number of dinners before the affair. The committee in charge of it all includes Mrs. Rodman K. Grissom, Mrs. Barbara C. Smith, Mrs. Henry Howard Brown, Mrs. T. Mitchell Hastings, Mrs. Floyd T. Chadwick, Mrs. Charles J. Mohr and Mrs. Stacy B. Lloyd.

Mrs. Clarence Warden and Mrs. Burdette Sloan were on the original committee, but recent deaths in their families have obliged them to withdraw.

The Stacy Lloyds will give a dinner for their daughter, Miss Ellen Douglas Lloyd, before the dance, and their other guests will be Albert Heath, Mona Crozer, Priscilla Davis, Virginia Heckscher, Stewart Wark, Jr., Bob Stetters, Jack Rankson and Wheeler H. Page.

The Isaac Clotters will entertain for their son, Isaac, Jr., and will have also the guests that Mrs. Sloan had invited to meet her daughter Etanora.

Did you see the things from the "Meeting Pot" of the overseas committee of the Emergency Aid? They were displayed two days last week in Freeman's window in Chestnut street above Fifteenth, and they were sold on Monday and Tuesday afternoons. It was really remarkable what prices these things brought. One or two of the committee members were there, and one got so excited when she found how the things were going up she thought she'd let go, and so she paid nearly $30 for a small miniature. I don't doubt that the returns will be far greater than if the returns and silver had been melted down and converted into its weight in money, as has been done with the thousand and one other things that were thrown into the pot that were broken, old and worn.

ORCHESTRA BUYS BONDS

Philadelphia Association Has Invested $100,000

Philadelphia music lovers received today with gratification the announcement that the Philadelphia Orchestra Association, through its investment fund, has subscribed to $100,000 of the United States Liberty Loan.

This makes the orchestra subscription to the three loans, $100,000.

In the case of the first loan, the association was the first to subscribe the full amount for which it subscribed.

It may also be noted that for all of these loans the orchestra members themselves have subscribed largely.

$20,000,000 TO BE ASKED FOR BIG CITY WAR CHEST

Campaign Will Seek Money to Meet All Demands Caused by Great War

A war chest which will hold enough money to take care of the needs of the city in the great struggle for the world will soon be filled by the patriotic citizens of Philadelphia and vicinity. The chest will be of ample proportions and built to hold between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000.

When it is realized what good work the American boys are doing abroad there is little doubt that the chest will be filled to overflowing.

The war chest will eliminate many war charity committees. Everything will be paid from it with the exception of money for Government investments, such as Liberty Loans and war savings stamps.

The drive to fill the war chest will start about May 20, just before the national Red Cross campaign starts. Philadelphia's share of the Red Cross budget will be paid from the war chest, making the Red Cross campaign unnecessary.

The filling of this very useful chest will greatly simplify the work of helping worthy causes in connection with the war. All the dollars for all worthy movements will be in the hands of the big receptacle, and there will be no hesitancy in taking them out when the occasion requires.

The war chest plan for Philadelphia was conceived by E. T. Stoenbury, who heard of the success which recently attended a similar plan at Columbus, O. A committee of public-spirited men from Philadelphia organized a luncheon and got first-hand information on the plan and the ideas obtained there will be followed in the local campaign.

Items of news for the society page will be provided. For further news, see the "Society" page of the Public Ledger, 908 Chestnut street.

CAMDEN GIRL WEDS SON OF FELIX ADLER

Miss Mae Wootton, Scout Troop Captain, Marries Aviation Officer in Texas

A romance between Miss Mae Wootton, 904 Lois avenue, Camden, captain of Girl Scout Troop No. 7, and Leutenant Walden Adler, son of Prof. Felix Adler, noted educator of New York and organizer of the New York Ethical Culture Society of that city, which began three years ago in the East, reached its climax in the "Lois Star" State April 4 when the pair were married. Leutenant Adler is attached to the United States aviation corps in Austin, Tex.

News of the marriage, which became generally known today among friends of the bride, was disclosed after she had journeyed alone to Austin, where the ceremony was performed. The marriage was hastened because the bridegroom expects to leave shortly for France. The couple are now residing in Austin.

When the present Mrs. Adler departed from her home in Camden very few of her friends had any idea where she was going or that she was going away to become a bride. The true purpose of her trip was known only to her relatives.

Mrs. Adler before her marriage was prominent in Red Cross work in Camden and in this city. As a member of the Girl Scouts she always took an active part in the different projects.

Leutenant Adler, who is thirty-five years old, is a graduate of Swarthmore University, near Nashville, Tenn. He was a football player and for years acted as a coach for different teams.

Professor Adler said today that the news of the marriage of his son was a surprise to him. He said that he knew the marriage was to take place and expressed the belief that the wedding was hastened because his son expects to sail soon for the other side.

"My son and his bride," said Professor Adler, "have known each other for a long while. The marriage took place in Austin, Tex., and we hope that they will be happy for the remainder of their lives."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wootton. She is an attractive young woman and was prominent among the younger set in Camden.

Professor Adler, father of the bridegroom, is a well-known lecturer and has written many interesting papers, some of them being "The Ethics of the Political Situation," "The Moral Implications of the War," "Life and Destiny" and "Marriage and Divorce."

The End of the Episode

I MUST go home. I can stay no longer in the house. For it seems unfair to Harriet. For once, I can look over my actions and find that I have never attracted me. From the first I had avoided him. Some instinct—something I tried to ignore—had told me to keep away from him. And I had. In the end I must go nothing with him or offend Harriet. It seemed such a little sacrifice.

But the thing had happened. Quite unexpectedly. If he had cared for me, but just any attractive girl who had been in the house a month would have had the same effect. Harriet had not said so.

Oh, I hate men—hate them. But how foolish all men are not like that. Harriet hated most of all my seeming disloyalty to Harriet—Harriet, my own loyal friend. At all costs Harriet must not know that I had ever loved her. I could stay under that roof no longer.

She knew that I must not with Jack Wilson, a doctor. He looked at me with an odd dislike. I am not clever at little deceptions, saw no way out, but I wrote Tom—Tom, my old stand-by in trouble.

So late this afternoon I received this telegram: "All mine are not like that. Harriet hated most of all my seeming disloyalty to Harriet—Harriet, my own loyal friend. At all costs Harriet must not know that I had ever loved her. I could stay under that roof no longer."

Then the monster drew up a very hairy, puffing dragon. From my train, which was to leave in five minutes, I saw the monster's face. Slowly the train pulled out—slowly it came to my window.

He waved a futile hat and gasped—"wiser—wiser—wiser!"

Then the monster was left on the platform—gaping—in vain.
